In this condition of things, counterfeits of the most bungling execution have mul-tiplied thicker than the leaves of Vallanimpunity, and hundreds of persons in our large cities, who patronize horso-cars, resturants and retail shops of every description, are daily victimized to the tune of

The nuisance is getting to be an intelerable one, particularly oppressive to the poor who can ill afford to be swindled out of even a small portion of their hard caruings. Among the batch of tatterdomalions now affoat, it is doubtful whether the Government will be able to recognize its own dilapidated offspring.

PLANK ROAD MEETING AT FIREMEN'S HALL TO-NIGHT.

Interesting Letter from Pithole City, PITHOLE CITY, Saturday, June 24, 1865. Baitors Morning Herald:

Loss than four weeks since the place from which I write was a "howling wilderness,"—I, c. It consisted of Thomas Holmden's old house and a barii. Not a lease had been given for building purposes. As I write the sound of the carpenter's hammer and saw coming from every direction, the long street lined with stores, hotels, saloons news rooms and offices, attest that the inevitable and impressible yankee nation is yet alive and around with spirit undiminished and energy un-impaired by the terrible ordeal which it has just so adecessfully passed through.

Eighty huildings are now up or in process of construction, and, within another four weeks, it is probable that at least three times the number will be under way.

Almost incredible, ain't it? Two telegraph of
